

Loremaster Alpha Data Use Policy

Thank you for joining the alpha test of Loremaster, developed by Valfar and Sons, Inc. This document explains how we use your data during testing and what you can expect.

How We Use Your Data

- Testing and development: We collect data you generate in the app (such as audio recordings, transcripts, campaign notes, and feedback) to find bugs, improve features, improve your user experience, and make Loremaster more useful.
- Quality review: Our development team may review raw audio, transcripts, and campaign content to better understand how the product is being used.
- Communication: We may contact you about updates, issues, or requests for feedback.

Who Has Access

- Our development team may access your raw data for debugging and product improvement.
- Participating players in your campaign may be granted access to view your campaign's information.
- No one else outside our team will have access to your raw recordings, transcripts, or campaign information.

How We Store Data

- All data is stored in Google Cloud Platform with access controls in place to limit who can view it.
- We do not sell or share your data with third parties.
- We keep data for the duration of the alpha, unless you choose to delete it at any time.

Your Choices

- You can stop participating in the alpha test at any time.
- You can request deletion of your data by emailing us at support@valfarandsons.com.

Questions?

If you have any questions about your data, privacy policy, or the alpha test, please reach out to support@valfarandsons.com. We'll respond as soon as we can!